This week marks the kickoff of the 2018 FIFA World Cup™ qualification campaign and the return of a number of popular events to the official FIFA calendar. As is tradition, FIFA GOAL returns this week, bringing you matches from the 2018 FIFA World Cup qualifiers. And as is also tradition, EA SPORTS FIFA 20 comes out on PlayStation 4, Windows PC, Xbox One, and macOS on 28 March. In addition, the UEFA Nations League returns on 15 March with three new events and two returning leagues. To kick off this week's event calendar, FIFA GOAL brings you the following matches from the 2018 FIFA World Cup qualifiers. European qualifiers for the 2018 FIFA World Cup kick off this week. Top of the list, Belgium and Hungary face off in the opening match of their UEFA Nations League campaign on Friday, March 16. Then on Wednesday, March 21, UEFA Nations League Rivalry Week will take place in England, culminating in an epic showdown between England and Spain at Wembley on Friday, March 23. To build upon the success of FIFA 20, EA Sports is making several big announcements at E3 2018, including the introduction of the much-anticipated "Anticipate Moment" feature, as well as EA SPORTS VR. Later this month, the upcoming FIFA 20 game will be officially released on PlayStation 4, Windows PC and Xbox One. Players will be able to dive in and play the game on 28 March, as it hits the shelves in North America, Europe and Australia/New Zealand. With FIFA 19 and FIFA 18 as the previous titles in the franchise, both are impressive titles with a strong record for delivering excellent football experience. Therefore, FIFA 20 is no exception. In fact, it is even better than the previous titles. Building upon its success in FIFA 19, EA SPORTS is focused on the core gameplay and features to deliver a truly deep gameplay experience, and the latest official updates to FIFA 20 deliver just that. The most prominent features in this release are the anticipated "Anticipate Moment" feature, "Creator Moments", FIFA Ultimate Team, goal celebrations and improved "Playmaker" animations. Due to the success of the popular FIFA GOAL events, EA SPORTS has added four new tournaments to the FIFA calendar this week. In addition, two familiar events are returning, namely the FIFA Confederations Cup and FIFA Confederations Cup 2017. Fans and players alike can look forward to the return of EA SPORTS FIFA Ultimate Team, the

What's new in Fifa 22:

- Managing Your Club - Play as your very own manager. From designing your kits and stadium to managing the transfer market, help transform your club from a small team to a global powerhouse in this innovative new mode.
- FIFA Master
- The Journey - Choose your next move in The Journey - the in-game story mode. Play the role of a new Pro, or a returning one, and earn some skills - as the training ground - which then come in handy in multiple game modes. Switch on your intuition, use your brains and quickly build up strategies, as you work your way from level 1 to pro at the whole range of game modes.
- New Stadiums - while existing stadiums are dramatically improved. New enhancements give fans even more of the action, and a fresh feel to the stadiums.
- More Career Moments - not only do you see more details, from the background through to the clothes on your character, you can now pick up and roll on the grass, use your reactions before controlling your dribbling, and respond in more detail to teammates' movements.
- Career Career Moments - Utilize more of your skills in Career mode, but will also be available in online tournaments.
- The Journey Team - Enhance your members as you move up the ranks in your team. A whole range of new abilities can be unlocked using the in-game currency - all tailored to improve the performance of a team with the most important members.
- Master League - new to FIFA, select a league and take on the best in the world, and win the coveted World Cup by outscoring your opponents as your club takes the top spot. Now, with more featured Masters, you'll face even more experience with each league. If you play multiple leagues in the same week, be sure to pick your favourite Masters to play as and prepare yourself for your challenge!"
