burn: How to Clear the Path to Heartburn Relief Treatment For many pyrite heartburn suffers, the excruciating symptoms of acid reflux or indigestion are the result of a peptic or ulcer condition. However, pyrite is also responsible for every other symptom of heartburn, including: Sore spots of pain on the shoulders, arms, or even around the ears Muscle tension and pain Sighing, groaning, and intense pain in the chest A burning sensation in the throat Headaches from eye pressure An aching body with no reason why, which leads to nausea and digestive problems While there's no way to cure or eliminate this mineral, it is far less commonly found in amounts that cause heartburn. While pyrite can certainly contribute to heartburn, it is not the sole cause of these symptoms. In fact, various other conditions, including food intolerances, damage to the esophagus, hiatal hernia, pancreatitis, digestive problems, and obesity are also associated with heartburn. While there is no way to completely eliminate a host of potential causes of acid ref
