If you have any questions about Tarnished, please contact us via tct-support@cardverse.com (1) About the Elden Ring The Elden Ring, an unforgeable magic device that belongs to the nobility of the land of Fenlyn, is its most treasured possession. Created by the almighty engineer, the androgynous god of smithing, it is considered a suitable treasure for a king. However, the Elden Ring is not the same as other magical devices, in that its use is prohibited by law and is punishable by death. The power of the Elden Ring is limited to only those who are raised to the ranks of Elden Lord. The elder nobility and the well-respected warriors are the only ones who are permitted to wield the power of the Elden Ring. The noble class of Fenlyn is composed of five families, each of which has amassed the strength of an individual family. Each family represents the power of the Elder Gods. The five families of Fenlyn are the Elsade Family, the Kralde Family, the Mohn Family, the Romde Family, and the Tarnde Family. The last family is composed of low-born people who have been twisted by the stigma of 'knave' and 'bard' and has been discriminated against by the members of the four other families. However, the Elden Ring is not only limited to the members of the five noble families. The Elden Ring can also be inherited, so it is not impossible to be wielded by people who did not attain the status of Elden Lord in the past. The Elden Ring is bestowed upon a noble family's eldest son as his birthright. Even though it is just a magical device, this role is associated with prestige and respect. The holder of the Elden Ring receives a tremendous amount of respect from other nobility as a result. The nobility of Fenlyn also wear a distinctive belt to differentiate themselves from the lower classes. In addition to the Elden Ring, the holder of

Frank Prei In an exclusive interview with the TASR newswire, renowned Slovak pianist and composer Frank Prei talked about his new recording, his performing schedule in Slovakia, the music festivals that he participates in and much more. Q: Your new CD is your first solo recording in 30 years. Does it mean that the Slovak musical scene has changed a lot in this period? A: My music does not have clear outlines in terms of time, nor content. Therefore, it is quite difficult to say, whether the Slovak musical scene has changed a lot in this period or it has not, and it certainly has. I do not even know if it has changed as much, because it is a highly subjective matter. But I do think that in the past, you could work in the classical idiom and not be exposed to the popular music, which was rising. I do think that people are now more willing to listen to your own music. Q: What do you like most about it? A: First of all, it was a privilege to perform your music at home. And, naturally, people liked it and they recognized that it has been a long time since I have played my music so freely, so spontaneously, and with so much energy, that I did not feel compelled to write a new piece to accompany it, but to play it. Q: Your concert at the HRO in Bratislava some years ago, and the audience told about how they felt, was that the right moment to record a solo album? A: No, actually. I don't know. I was rather afraid that the moment might have passed and that in today's musical climate, I would have no place in the
