A 2-year-old boy was referred for observation of red papules on his left forearm, wrist, and thigh, which had been present for 8 months. The lesions were linear and 1-1.5 cm in length with mild pruritus. Histopathologic examination revealed intraepidermal vacuolar alteration with comedone formation in the upper dermis. Alcian blue staining showed the presence of numerous ceroid particles. Furthermore, electron microscopic examination revealed that the intraepidermal porokeratoma cells contained well-developed keratohyaline granules in the cytoplasm. Immunohistochemical studies showed strong expression of cytokeratin 14 and Ki-67 in these porokeratoma cells. The porokeratoma was diagnosed as eccrine porokeratoma with multiple vesiculobullous eruption. To the best of our knowledge, this is the first report of a porokeratoma with multiple vesiculobullous eruption localized to the extremities in a 2-year-old boy.Q: How to set up an SPA for a requirement where I need to put the same page in two modes? I have been tasked with creating a front end web application with an existing server-side application. The client is requesting that two modes be used and in each mode a separate DOM should be used. Essentially the client has two pages that are identical except for the data being displayed. The data is different on both pages so when the client clicks the link to the second page it will load with the correct data. I'm having a hard time wrapping my head around this. I've never done this before. c6a93da74d
